Dr. Sam's Mother Kills Self

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Mrs. Richard A. Sheppard, Sr., the mother of convicted wife-slayer, Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, was found dead today in the home of another son.

Police said she committed suicide by shooting herself. They said she left a suicide note. The contents of the note were not disclosed.

She was found at the home of Dr. Stephen A. Sheppard, Dr. Sam's brother.

Mrs. Sheppard's death was reported as the defense in her son's murder case withdrew its application for a new trial for the 31-year-old osteopath and concentrated efforts on appealing his second degree-murder conviction to a higher court.

Attorneys for Sheppard had planned to ask for a new trial on the basis of "newly-discovered evidence," but withdrew the motion before it was heard in Common Pleas Court.

The action canceled a hearing scheduled for tomorrow morning before common pleas Judge Edward Blythin, and paved the way for Dr. Sheppard to be sent to Ohio penitentiary to start serving a life sentence.

In New TV Role Today

For the first time in history the opening of Parliament was televised for posterity. Prime actor in the historic occasion was Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Governor-General, who is seen reading the Throne Speech in the House of Commons, Ottawa.

B.C. Studies New Power Control

Lands Minister R. E. Sommers said today the B.C. government intends going ahead with present plans for the Kaiser dam despite blocking legislation announced in this morning's Throne Speech in the House of Commons.

"We can only be guided by existing legislation," said Mr. Sommers. "There has been no change in the facts."

The Throne Speech said the federal government will propose to "assume tighter control over the export of power. There will be amendments to the Electricity and Fluids Export Act, and a bill to control works which affect the normal flow of rivers crossing the international boundary into the U.S."

"This bill," the speech said, "will be for the purpose of ensuring that natural resources are developed in the best interests of the Canadian public."

Ottawa reports said the bill is aimed partly at blocking the B.C. government's deal with Kaiser Aluminum interests for construction of a $30,000,000 water storage dam at Castlegar Narrows on Arrow Lakes. The federal government feels the deal is unsatisfactory.

Mr. Sommers said he had not heard of the Throne Speech announcement, and could not say whether "Social Credit" MP's would be asked to fight the blocking legislation.

MAIN POINTS

OTTAWA (BUP)—Here are the main points of the government's legislative program as outlined in the Throne Speech read by Governor-General Vincent Massey at the Opening of Parliament today:

1. Substantial increases in public construction projects to help meet regional and seasonal unemployment crises.

2. Increases in the size and length of winter supplementary benefits paid under the Unemployment Insurance Act, and general amendments to increase the effectiveness of the act.

3. Increases in the basic rates of War Veterans' Allowances and a higher ceiling on permissible outside income.

4. Removal of Ripple Rock, a hazard to navigation in Seymour Narrows.

5. Changes in the Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act, aimed at blocking a proposal by British Columbia to dam the Arrow Lakes section of the Columbia River to provide power for an aluminum plant in the United States.

6. Federal aid to hurricane victims in Ontario and Nova Scotia.

7. Approval of the NATO protocol admitting West Germany to the Defensive Alliance as a full member.

8. Loan facilities for fishermen similar to those granted farmers under the Farm Improvements Loan Act.

9. Lowered age eligibility regulations for blind persons receiving pensions and higher ceilings on allowable outside income.

10. Changes in the Railway Act to speed the elimination of level crossings.

11. Consolidation of the Canadian National Railways Act.

12. Joint committee study of the present Municipal Grants Act.

13. Stronger meat and canned food inspection measures.

14. Homeowners will be able to obtain bank loans for home improvements under the National Housing Act after Feb. 1.

Insurance Benefit Hike, Bigger Vet Allowances To Get Early Action

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation for a "substantial increase" in public works aimed at combatting unemployment will be introduced into Parliament immediately, it was announced in the Speech From the Throne read at today's sessional opening.

Works already approved were being stepped up.

The speech, read by Governor-General Massey, also said Parliament will be asked to increase the amount and duration of supplementary winter unemployment insurance benefits.

Although the national economy is in a generally healthy condition," the throne speech said, "the relatively poor wheat crop is being reflected by a small decline in the total national income. Some unemployment of a regional and seasonal nature is being experienced."

Opening the second session of the 22nd Parliament, Governor-General Massey delivered the throne speech before a joint assembly of senators and Commons members in the red-carpeted Senate chamber, with the glare of television lights beating on the ceremony for the first time.

The governor-general drove from his Rideau Hall residence through biting cold in an open landau, escorted by a mounted 24-man guard of RCMP carrying the Mounties' guidon.

Bank Loans for Home Improvements

In outlining proposed government action, the throne speech said the government proposes to bring into general operation Feb. 1 a section of the National Housing Act providing loans for home improvements.

The owner of a one-family unit would be able to obtain a bank loan for home improvement to a maximum of $2,500. This provision was brought into force Jan. 1 for small holders under the Veterans' Land Act. It has also been brought into force in a few limited areas where, for instance, storm damage had been severe.

Increases in the basic rates of allowances to needy war veterans will be proposed, along with raising the ceiling of permissible incomes for these recipients. As is customary in the throne speech's skeleton outline of legislation, no details were given.

About 42,000 persons now receive allowances. A spokesman said the increases would be "generous" but would not be up to the scale sought by the Canadian Legion—to $60 from $50 a month for single recipients and to $120 from $90 a month for married ones.

Legislation will be introduced, the speech announced, to provide facilities for loans to fishermen for improving vessels and equipment. They will be similar to those extended under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, whereby farmers get government-backed loans from banks.

Amendments to the Railway Act dealing with the elimination of level crossings will be proposed. A major feature, it was understood, will be an increase to $5,000,000 from $1,000,000 in the federal government's annual contribution towards removal of crossing hazards, in line with a 1954 recommendation of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Another transport measure will be aimed at consolidating legislation affecting the publicly-owned Canadian National Railways.

Tighten Control on Power Export

The government will propose to assume tighter control over the export of power. (See story column 4.)

Amendments will be sought to the Blind Persons Act, to lower the age of eligibility and raise the permissible income ceilings for pensioners. The eligible age now is 21. It was reported this will be lowered to 18.

Permissible incomes vary from $840 a year for single blind person to $1,440 for a couple both blind.

The speech said legislation will be proposed to replace the Meat and Canned Foods Act by measures to provide for the establishment of standards for all agricultural products and for the inspection of meat.

The speech listed—by name only—a long series of measures to which amendments will be proposed, including the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act and the Municipal Grants Act.

Gold mining aid, it has been reported, will consist of a renewal for 1955 of the subsidy for marginal mines that expired at the end of 1954, with perhaps a change in formula reducing the over-all cost of about $16,000,000 a year.

Improved Deal for Municipalities

An improved deal for municipalities having considerable tax-free federal property is expected under the Municipal Grants Act. It has been reported those with federal property amounting to more than 2 per cent of their total assessment will get grants equal to full municipal taxation. At present, those with more than 4 per cent get grants equal to 75 per cent of tax.

Another announcement in the speech said parliament will be asked to provide for removal of Ripple Rock, a menace to navigation on the British Columbia coast north of Vancouver.

Dealing with external affairs, the speech said parliament will be asked to approve the Paris agreements for the rearmament of West Germany and her admission into NATO.

While there was hopeful evidence that the strength of the free world had lessened the likelihood of aggression, the

Race Track Set To Go; Casey Demands Control

A threat to take out an injunction against backers of a proposed Beaver-Elk Lake race track unless Saanich council approval is first obtained, was made today by Reeve Joseph Casey.

Stanley Hoskin, spokesman for interests behind the track, said today work will start within a month on a $350,000 layout. Plans call for a 5,000-person covered grandstand, stables for 300 horses, plus parking and other facilities, he said.

Reeve Casey reported no official approach has been made to the Saanich council, and "as far as I am concerned the whole matter is still in the air. I think they are working on the assumption they don't have to apply to us at all, and likely think they can do anything they want under the Elk Lake Water Act."

The act, dated 1881, gives the city control of the watershed area.

However, Saanich Council already has before it a by-law prohibiting anyone from holding race meets or starting track construction without council approval.

LEGAL SEE-SAW

The see-saw between the city and Saanich over which of the two holds jurisdiction of the track site would be a matter for legal opinion, the reeve said.

To date, a petition containing 250 signatures opposing track construction is in Saanich council hands "including 100 per cent of the people in the immediate track area," the reeve said. "On the basis of the petition, a public hearing could be held from which a referendum on the track issue could result."

But with announced plans to start construction next month, there is no time for this, said the reeve. That is why he is considering an injunction if operations get under way without the entire situation being clarified.

SEPTUAGINT START

Plans of the racing interests are to hold the first race meet in September on a five-eighth mile track with a six furlong chute, the same size as Hastings Park track.

Parking facilities are planned for approximately 3,000 cars. Centre of the track will be used as a sports arena.

Mr. Hoskin said it is the intention to co-operate in every way with the municipality.

CHIEF BACKERS

Mr. Hoskin also named G. Max Bell, Calgary, prominent western Canadian newspaper publisher and oil magnate, and Ralph Farris, head of a Vancouver investment house and son of Senator J. W. de B. Farris, as principal investors in the racing project.

Mr. Bell, contacted at Santa (Continued on Page 13)

RCAF Plane, TCA Airliner Said In Near Collision Over Moose Jaw

OTTAWA (CP)—Transportation department officials are inquiring into reports of a near-collision of two planes near Moose Jaw Thursday night and will decide later whether to hold a formal investigation, a spokesman said today.

The department will collect whatever information is available on the incident involving a TCA airliner and an RCAF training plane. It is possible it will recommend a formal enquiry by the RCAF.

Meanwhile, an RCAF spokesman said it is following a similar course of gathering information and has not yet decided whether to open a formal investigation.

The transport official said this is the normal procedure in such cases.

On arrival at Vancouver early today, Capt. Joseph Crispin of the TCA North Star said he had taken emergency action to avoid a possible mid-air collision just west of Moose Jaw with a plane he identified as an RCAF Harvard. Crispin said he was flying at 6,000 feet.

The transport department spokesman indicated the air force likely would make an investigation, if there is to be one, "because the altitude at which the North Star was flying is a commercial level and an air force plane should not have been on it."

Last April 8 an RCAF Harvard trainer based at Moose Jaw collided with a TCA North Star. All 35 persons aboard the airliner and the Harvard pilot were killed, along with one woman on the ground after wreckage fell onto a Moose Jaw house.

4 Men Held in Slaying Of Vancouver Chinese

Autopsy Ordered on Body of Aged Man Murdered in Grocery Store After Fight

VANCOUVER (BUP)—An autopsy was ordered today on the body of an aged Chinese slain in a grocery store robbery while police held four suspects in connection with the killing.

The four men were arrested following a wild 75-mile-an-hour car chase from the Kitsilano district after Ah Wing, 65, was beaten to death Thursday night as he grabbed a rubber hose to protect himself. The quartet consisted of three Chinese and one white man.

Police, who did not immediately identify the suspects, said they would be charged after the autopsy.

The four were arrested without a struggle by a one-man patrol car officer, Const. Robert C. Lyett, who gave chase after a woman in a beauty parlor next door to the grocery store.

The alarm was turned in by Mrs. Winnifred Cowie, whose husband, Andy, was talking to Wing a few moments before the attack.

A Vancouver Herald reporter, Frank Dickinson, 22, saw the attack and gave chase in his car when the men fled in their get-away car.

Police said they did not know how much money was stolen, but that a "considerable amount" was recovered from the get-away car. No weapons were found in the car.

Adam Heinz also tried to get $50,000 from Harry R. Reifel, a local millionaire distiller and night club owner. He was arrested after an intensive investigation by postal authorities, the RCMP and city police.

Reifel said Heinz once worked for him on his dairy farm 32 miles east of here. Reifel said Heinz's note to Astor demanded the money be paid into the farmhand's bank account here. He gave the account number in the letter, and police traced Heinz through the number.

Astor received an inheritance of $75,000,000 from his father, John Jacob Astor 3rd, who died in the Titanic ship disaster.

$200,000 Extortion Attempt

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A 43-year-old immigrant, arrested after a seven-month search, appears in court today on a charge he tried to extort $150,000 from Vincent Astor, one of New York's richest men.

Adam Heinz also tried to get $50,000 from Harry R. Reifel, a local millionaire distiller and night club owner. He was arrested after an intensive investigation by postal authorities, the RCMP and city police.

$200 TOTAL PRIZE FOR CROSSWORD 94

The fact that there are lots of "masters" in the world but not so many "masters" spoiled the entries of nearly 75 per cent of contestants in the Times' Crossword Puzzle No. 94.

It's not every man you would call this of course" was the clue, which implied most but not all men. This favors the answer "master" which can apply to all but the small minority of men bearing ranks and titles. There are relatively few men who would be called "masters."

"Vow" instead of "Bow" and "Hear" instead of "Head" were other words that disqualified hundreds of other entries.

So the total prize for Crossword No. 94, which appears today on Page 19, together with complete answer for No. 93, jumps to $200.

No Solution Found To Gatt Problems

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada's Trade Minister Howe believes that the Free World's international agreements on trade and tariffs will remain in existence, but he sees no easy solution to its problems.

Howe made this point Thursday night as he, External Affairs Minister Pearson and Finance Minister Harris left for Ottawa after a meeting with State Secretary Dulles and other high United States officials.

The 37-country General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade now is undergoing revision. Discussions in Geneva, GATT, as it is called, contains a set of rules and principles by which its members agree to conduct their mutual foreign trade relations, and provides a means to reduce through negotiation tariffs and other governmentally imposed barriers to international trade.

TALKS IN DANGER

The talks in Geneva have been in danger of collapse, largely through U.S. resistance to moves that would limit her powers to curb imports when she has production surpluses. At the present time, the U.S. restricts imports of grain and dairy products. This affects Canada's economy, particularly as Canada's exports provide about 25 per cent of her national earnings.

The trouble in Geneva largely has resolved around U.S. attempts to give more flexibility to GATT.

DON'T TRUST TO LUCK

The president of this overvalued concern, an old man named Sir Sandford Fleming, was connected with the most powerful group of financiers that Canada has ever seen. Their smile would mean fortune to a young man, and their frown ruin to men of lesser position. The loss of including an unproductive concern at an unfair price would have been little to me personally—but it would have saddled the new amalgamated industry and the investors with a liability instead of an asset.

It was certainly far easier to be pliable than to be firm. Every kind of private pressure was brought to bear on me to accede to the purchase of the property. When this failed, all the immense engines for the formation of public opinion which were at the disposal of the opposing forces were directed against me. And that attack was cleverly conducted. Those who had failed to induce me to break faith with the investing public appealed to that public to condemn me for forming a trust.

"I am prepared now to confess that I was (in my youth) bitterly hurt and injured by the injustice of these attacks. But I regret nothing. Why? Because these early violent criticisms taught me to treat ferocious onslaughts in later life with complete indifference.

What is more, that innate judgment which dwells in the recesses of the mind tells me that my whole capacity for action in affairs would have been damaged by the moral collapse of yielding to that threat. Pliability would have become a habit rather than a matter of judgment and will, for fortitude only comes by practice.

WILL MEET CRISIS

Every young man who enters business will at some time or another meet a similar crisis which will determine the bias of his career and dictate his habitual technique in negotiation. But he may well exclaim, "How do you help me? You warn me in one and the same breath against rigidity and pliability!"

It is the old question: How can firmness be combined with adaptability to circumstances? There is no answer except that the two qualities must be made to run concurrently in the mind. One must be responsive to the world and yet faithful to one's own instincts.

It is only the special circumstance of a grave crisis which will put a young man to this crucial test of judgment. The case will have to be judged on its merits, and yet the final decision will affect the whole of his career.

profits. One may pity the sellers, but cannot blame the buyers. Those who have the courage of their judgment are bound to win. How can the victim exercise from his mind this dread of the unknown—this partly conscious and partly subconscious fear—"which eats the heart away?" Nothing can throw it off, except a resolute effort of will and intelligence.

I would give one simple recipe for the cure. When you feel anxious about the present, think of the worst anxiety you ever had in the past. Instead of one grip on the mind, there will be two distinct grips—and the greater grip of the past will overpower the lesser one in the present.

"Nothing," a man will say "can be as bad as that crisis of old, and yet I survived it successfully. If I went through that and survived, how far less arduous is the situation today?" A man can thus will himself into the possession of a stout heart.

If a man can still that inner panic he will need to fear very little all the storms which may rage against him from outside. The courage of the heart will let no expedient be left untried. But both ingenuity and courage will find their real strength in a health which has not yet exhausted the resources of the body.

I have written that moral courage is rarer than physical courage. It is much too rare. The man with the courage of his own convictions is the exception rather than the rule. Sometimes it may seem that his fearlessness and independence of judgment serve him but ill, that he would do better for himself were he to cultivate the arts of the courtier and the flatterer and say what he does not believe whenever his genuine beliefs might be unpalatable.

What is the answer to that? I would say that where a man can only prosper at the expense of his manhood, it is better that he should remain poor. But I do not accept the necessity for sycophancy. It never leads to real success.

Firmness which is not obstinacy, health which is not the fad of the Valetudinarian, adaptability which is not weakness, enterprise which is not rashness—these are the qualities which will preserve men in those evil days when the "blast of the terrible one is against the wall."

Heliport Study Backs City Site

Cowley Report May Hasten Gordon Head Airpark Sale

Development of a mid-city heliport east of Point Ellice Bridge was recommended to City Council Thursday by retired RCAF Air Vice-Marshal A. T. Cowley.

He has been studying the heliport question since last November. His studies were financed by a $150 city council grant.

AVM Cowley's proposed site was mentioned in the mayor's inaugural speech Monday night and is the same as suggested in several Times articles during recent months.

Action on AVM Cowley's recommendation may be taken at the January 13 council meeting. Concurrently the aldermen also would review the mayor's proposal to sell land at Gordon Head held for a future airpark.

PAT BAY ADEQUATE Chief point of the Cowley report is that the city does not need any other large airport than that now located at Patricia Bay. But the report said that in 10 or 20 years the city will require a mid-city heliport.

If the council agrees with the recommendations it is thought likely an attempt will be made to sell the Gordon Head property back to the federal government, likely for the same $20,000 price the federal government charged for the 57.6-acre field in 1947.

The city would have to pay an additional $10,000 to Ottawa to get clear title before it could dispose of the land otherwise.

City representative to the B.C. Aviation Council, Burges J. Gadsden, recommended to council last year that the Gordon Head site be developed as an airpark. But town planning expert, W. J. Wilson, thought a second airport would not be needed for years if a helicopter landing area were provided in the city.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—A pile of 1,020,000 pennies weighing more than three and a half tons flowed over the gymnasium floor of Pius XI high school today.

The pennies represented $10,200 collected by pupils at the school for a building fund for a new addition.

The coins—in a pile about 100 feet square and three feet high at the centre—were piled on the gym floor for the pupils who wanted to see a million of something.

The pupils sang on the streets at Christmas, washed cars, shoveled snow and did other odd jobs to raise the money.

Probe Opened Into Sask. Plane Tragedy

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The burned bodies of eight victims of a plane crash in Saskatchewan's far north were flown here late Thursday as investigations started into the province's second multiple death air disaster in eight months.

A twin-engine Anson owned by Saskatchewan Government Airways overturned on landing at Buffalo Narrows, 185 miles northwest of here, and caught fire. Eight persons, including five children, died in the flames. Killed were pilot Stuart Millar of Prince Albert; Stanley Woodward, manager of the Hudson's Bay Co. post at La Loche, Sask.; his wife and two children, Marilyn and Robert, and three young Indian children, Cecil Lemaigre, Florence and John Baptiste Piche.

An inquest will open in Prince Albert late today.

Cause of the crash was not determined. The plane, a converted military craft, struck the ground and flipped over several hundred feet short of the runway. It was on a return flight to Prince Albert from La Loche having left Prince Albert, SGA headquarters, on the outward trip Wednesday.

The three Indian children were bound for Buffalo Narrows, where they attended school, from La Loche. The Woodward family was travelling to Prince Albert.

LONDON (UP)—The government announced today it has granted a pay increase to workers on Britain's nationalized railways and an "agreement" has been reached with the union representing 400,000 railway men.

Two and one-half hours later Sir Brian Robertson, chairman of the transport commission that manages the government-owned railways, announced agreement had been reached.

The amount of the wage increase was not disclosed.

Hammarskjold, Advisers at Grips
With Chinese on Prisoner Issue

(The following dispatch, by direct cable from Peiping, is written by an editor of The Times of India, Bombay, on special assignment in Peiping for United Press.)

By D. R. MANKEKAR

(Copyright 1955, Times of India News Service)

PEIPING (UP)—United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and Premier Chou en-lai conferred into the early morning hours today on the fate of 11 American airmen jailed as "spies," and it was apparent both sides were getting down to cases with no beating about the bush.

Unions Ask Federal Subsidy For Railways

MONTREAL (CP)—Eighteen railway unions have recommended that the federal government pay a subsidy to the railways to enable them to meet union demands for improved working conditions.

Frank Hall, of Montreal, spokesman for the unions, announced today that the recommendation was made in a letter sent to Labor Minister Gregg Thursday.

The letter outlined decisions reached at a three-day closed meeting here of union delegates, representing both the running and non-operating trades of the railways.

At a press conference in his office today, Mr. Hall said the union had not recommended how much of a subsidy should be paid to the railways.

The letter said the unions will seek meetings with the railways and the government with a view to streamlining the Industrial Disputes Act.

During the union meetings, some of the 110 delegates protested that the right of railway workers to strike to back up demands now has vanished. They also expressed dissatisfaction with bargaining, conciliation and arbitration machinery.

Harbor Defense Talk Slated for Jan. 19

Defense organization of Victoria harbor facilities will get under way Jan. 19 when two Vancouver civil defense officers will meet with local CD officers and harbor industry representatives.

They hope to establish a Victoria Civil Defense Harbor Services organization similar to that of Vancouver, the only Canadian port with a developed system to maintain facilities in the event of disaster.

Maj. C. H. W. Blunt, Vancouver Civil Defense Harbor Services officer, and Capt. John E. Clayton, Vancouver-New Westminster harbor master, will hold talks with delegates from about 35 Victoria waterfront industries, city engineering department, transportation companies, department of transport and other firms fronting on the harbor.

The meeting will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the main lecture room at civil defense headquarters, 622 Cormorant.

VANCOUVER EXAMPLE—Vancouver harbor CD has been in operation for about two years and maintains a full-time director and staff. The organization was issued as an example at a recent college for harbor masters at Annapolis, Ont.

Resumption of Monday night lectures to provide interested

The presence of two international law experts at the overnight meeting suggested the talks straightaway got to grips with the main point of contention between the two sides regarding the status of the Americans who were convicted by a Chinese military court.

The two experts were Prof. Humphrey Waldock of Great Britain, who accompanied Hammarskjold on his mission, and Prof. Chou Keng Sheng, adviser to the Chinese foreign ministry and a well-known professor of international law.

UN INITIATIVE—It also is apparent that much of the talking so far has been done by Hammarskjold.

The two international law experts are believed to have taken part of the time to expound the legal aspects of the problem from their two viewpoints.

Chinese circles say that the names of the imprisoned Americans were included by the American government in the list of American nationals in China to be exchanged for Chinese nationals in the United States during the negotiations at Geneva seven months ago.

This, according to these circles, proves that at that time the American government did not consider the accused as prisoners of war.

(The United States' position is that not only the imprisoned airmen but more than 500 other prisoners of the Korean war as well are being held illegally by the Chinese in violation of the Korean truce agreement for exchange of all war prisoners.)

persons with basic information on civil defense organization and operation will be started next Monday at 7:30 p.m. in CD headquarters.

R. H. Abbott, chief CD instructor for the Greater Victoria area, will preside.

At the same time, a warden's advanced refresher course will be continued.

Monday afternoon at 2:15, fire chief Frank Briars will give volunteer provincial fire fighters a training session on fire protection of government buildings and other structures. Volunteers are civil servants from all departments at the legislative buildings.

St. Ann's Academy PTA will be given civil defense first aid instruction at 7:30 p.m. at the academy, Jan. 13, and on Jan. 20, R. M. Barnes of St. John Ambulance will instruct male civil defense workers in first aid at 7:30 p.m. in CD headquarters.

FIVE PACKING PLANTS SETTLE, RESUME WORK

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Workers at five B.C. plants of the Canadian Cannery (Western) Ltd. returned to their jobs today following settlement of an 11-week strike over wages and fringe benefits.

The walkout of the 548 members of the United Packinghouse Workers' Union (CIO-CCL), ended after the workers voted to accept a settlement suggested by Labor Minister Lyle Wicks.

Workers at the Penticton plant were the last to vote to return to the job. Earlier, workers in Vancouver, Mission, Ashcroft and Kelowna had voted in favor of going back to work.

The settlement included a wage increase of about 5 per cent and extra holidays and fringe benefits.

Behind the Dam

THE POWER PROBLEM OF THE Columbia River system is not altered in the least by the Provincial Government's latest change of policy.

Mr. Sommers says that his government, instead of the Kaiser aluminum interests, will build a proposed storage dam on Arrow Lake. But the dam, whether built by the government or a private corporation, will have precisely the same effect upon the Columbia's waters, and that effect the Federal Government is not prepared to allow.

It might be thought from Mr. Sommers' speeches that only some question of law or finance was involved in this dispute. In fact, it is a dispute of highest national policy—between a policy of exporting our waterpowers mainly for the benefit of American interests or holding them in Canada, so far as possible, for our own benefit.

The key to this problem is the Columbia water now wasted at the summer freshet season. How is this waste to be avoided, the surplus water stored and fed into power plants in uniform flow?

The Provincial Government proposes to store water in Arrow Lake for use solely in American power plants south of the border. In return for this huge advantage the American power plants would pay British Columbia in cash, and in a small share of the extra power thus developed, if British Columbia wants that power. This policy, as the Provincial Government says, is based on the assumption that British Columbia has more power than it can ever use and can well afford to export it.

The Federal Government quarrels with the first premise of this policy. It believes that Canada will need all the power it can create before long and should not export any, except under exceptional circumstances, and then only if it is adequately paid—in American power rather than cash.

On that assumption the Federal Government is about to investigate a scheme which would hold all the wasted water of the Columbia within Canada. This would be accomplished by a diversion of water out of the Columbia into the Fraser. The waste would thus flow entirely through Canadian territory to the sea and create electricity at various points along the Thompson and Fraser.

We face here a clear conflict between a Federal and a provincial policy; between the use of our water to a maximum extent within Canada and the export of water (which means power) to the United States.

Obviously until it can study the proposed Fraser River diversion the Federal Government cannot approve the Arrow Lake dam. For that scheme commits Canada to provide a new flow of water to the United States. The water which might be used in Canada, by the diversion, or otherwise, must be assured to the American power plants, forever. Canada thus would lose the chance of a maximum Columbia development within its own territory, for the use of its own industry.

Mr. Sommers tries to argue that the Federal Government has no right to interfere with the provincial policy. Water, he says, is a natural resource and, by the constitution, a matter of property and civil rights entirely under provincial control.

There appears to be no foundation for that belief. The Federal Government's control over all water flowing out of Canada has never been successfully challenged. Control must rest with the national Government for it alone is competent to conduct negotiations with foreign nations. Like international trade, the international movement of water is essentially Federal business.

If it were not so, ten provinces could create ten different policies and there could be no national policy at all.

Fortunately the Federal Government understands the need to conserve all possible power for the future of Canadian industry, while the Provincial Government is ready to export our greatest capital resource as if it were ordinary merchandise.

A Better Ship Service

VICTORIA'S CHAMBER OF COMMERCE has spoken plainly to the CPR. This city's businessmen have said that they are not satisfied with a transportation system which, through emphasis on Nanaimo, is injuring the commercial life of the capital.

They have followed their announcement of that attitude with a request for better service between here and mainland points.

The Chamber spokesmen recognize the capacities of the CPR to improve its performance and have made definite suggestions on means by which improvements can be made. These are not hair-brained proposals. They are the product of serious thought and inquiry by men with a sincere interest in promoting transportation efficiency in this port.

It remains, of course, for the company to decide what action it will take on these suggestions. Victorians hope the recommendations will receive more than cavalier treatment. For its own benefit, the company should see they do. The CPR cannot be unaware of a growing resentment against company policy which appears quite willing to sacrifice Victoria's interests to those of the up-Island despite the fact that the vast bulk of Island population is located in this vicinity.

At all events, the Chamber of Commerce has indicated that if improvements are not made by the existing line it will invite a competitor to carry freight and passengers between the southern part of the Island—probably from Swartz Bay—and the southern Mainland. Such a service, it has been pointed out, could cut travelling and hauling time with an accompanying reduction in costs.

The Victoria businessmen have drawn to the company's attention the advantages of a different type of ship to that now in operation here. Presumably a vessel styled to meet local needs would be an essential for a better service. If the CPR is not interested in providing one, conceivably some other concern would be.

The case made by the Chamber of Commerce is not a sentimental appeal to the loyalty of traditional ties between the company and Victoria. These men are talking about bread and butter—their businesses and the further development of Greater Victoria and the south part of the Island. It is important that the CPR should hear them with these facts in mind.

State of the Union

REPORTING THE STATE OF the Union, President Eisenhower finds it good and getting better. Business, he tells the Congress is improving, an almost unbelievable national production of five hundred billion dollars a year is in sight, unemployment is shrinking and the economic weather ahead looks fair.

But outside the United States the climate, as he says, remains a stalemate between the two worlds and no better prospect need be expected at the moment. That, however, is a great improvement over the acute crisis of recent years when peace seemed immediately in danger.

The danger now, in the President's view, is that the free world will take stalemate for victory and begin to dissolve its defenses. The most important passages in his message warn the United States that it must maintain its strength, keep it fluid, develop the best weapons and not depend on any single one of them—in short, it must be able with its allies to deploy such a massive power that no aggressor will dare to break the peace.

To this and other ends the President makes a notable and telling appeal for bipartisanship in great affairs. He warns the new Democratic Congress that a quarrel between it and the Republican executive could produce "paralysis" of policy, and he is prepared to go a long way to reach agreement with his opponents.

He offers various domestic policies, like vast highway, school building and housing programs but, to pay for them, for defense and other essential costs he proposes to avoid any further tax reductions. Instead, he asks the Congress to postpone certain reductions, amounting to about $3 billions a year, though they are due to take effect in the spring. There is no relief in this budget for the taxpayer and probably in this respect it foreshadows the sort of budget we may soon expect in Canada.

Canadians may be disappointed by the President's scanty mention of reduced tariffs but his trade policy is to be fully explained in a subsequent message not long hence. For the world at large the great question of the present Congressional session is whether the President can secure a gradual but systematic reduction in tariffs and an increase in imports. His prospects, in a Democratic Congress, seem reasonably good.

The Latest Thing—A Split-Level White House

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

ALONG with the greenery and things, we took down the Christmas cards yesterday. And for the first time in two weeks I took a real look at every one of them. Many, of course, had grown familiar during the fortnight.

But a few of them I couldn't remember having seen before, and among these was one with printed directions on it.

The directions said that if I break out the picture along the perforated lines, I can then use the metallic border as a picture frame for my favorite photo when Christmas is over. Along about now, in fact.

Now it is probably very churlish of me to be emitting laughter or even groans about a card which somebody sent me out of the goodness of his heart. He sent it because he loves me and that is all that matters. And in theory this is true. Actually, he doesn't love me at all. On the contrary, he sent me a card only because he had played me two very dirty tricks in a single day, five days before Christmas.

WHEN I showed signs of being ready to accept no more dirty tricks, he said to himself, "This is awful. I'll not be able to play any more dirty tricks on Dave Brock next year, what will I do? I know... I'll send him a very nice Christmas card, with a metallic border and all, and then he will realize I am a pretty good guy. And he will know I forgive him for anything I've done to him."

Which leaves me in the clear. I am now free to go on thinking whatever I like about a Christmas card that can later be used as a picture frame for my favorite photo. Whatever my favorite photo may be... I think it is a photo of myself undraped except for a purple banner with white lilies on it, which says at the top "Live for Others" and bears at the bottom the name of a prohibitionist league. The banner is suspended by brass chains from a brass rod, and it has lovely golden fringes made of cloth-of-brass. And it is really Quite Something. (In the picture the chain is hung about my neck.)

THE STORY of how I got that banner is long but interesting. In a very condensed form it is short but dull, and that is how you must hear it today. I had stored some books and papers in the cellars of a trust company, and one day I went into these caverns to get some of my things, and I saw this banner poking out of an old trunk, and I asked an official who that trunk belonged to, and he said the owner had been lost track of soon after Confederation, or perhaps soon after the Battle of Lundy's Lane, and even her name was now forgotten. So that perhaps the banner now belonged to the King; who knows?

I said I didn't think the Crown would have any use for a purple banner with lilies living for others on it, but I myself was eager to take it home and treasure it up. And could this change of ownership or non-ownership be effected under the terms of an unknown trusteeship?

WELL, I don't know if you've ever tried to get such a banner from a trustee or not. I had not realized before that in order to dispense with formalities, a trust company has to dispense and dispense till you feel you are going mad, mad, mad. However, in the long run I climbed on board a street car carrying my banner. And carrying it proudly.

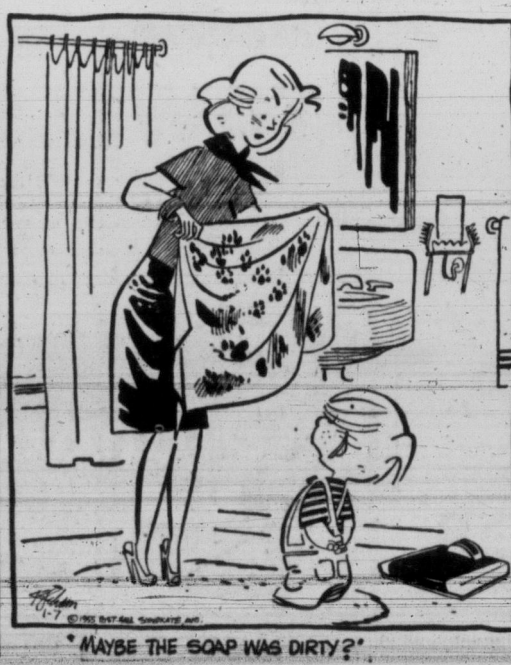

Well, if I don't frame that particular photo with my nice useful Christmas card, no doubt I can frame another. Provided I feel like framing photos with Christmas cards at all, which is one of life's mooter points.

IF I WERE allowed to choose useful cards for myself, I sometimes think I'd prefer a card which could later be used as a grocery list or a fly-swatter or a facecloth. As for cards which can (in an emergency) be swiftly converted into sun visors, ludo boards, or Eaton collars... these, believe me, are the things with which my friends could overpower me.

I once had a dear old friend, a dear old lady, who was perhaps dear in a sense known more intimately to me than to you. When you think of a dear old lady, you think of hollyhocks and sachets and potpourri, and pussy cats and cute names and kitchen activities and my amount of tea. My dear old lady was far other. About as you as you can get. She wore yellow satin evening gowns and drank Bronx or Manhattan cocktails, quant, suff, and sang raucous songs in a raucous voice, and told us first-hand stories about the frontier days in Nebraska City (Neb.) and in Nome and such.

WELL, this dear old lady, in her 70's, once told us she had found a real use for used Christmas cards: spent cards, dead cards, cards that would never know even an Indian summer of being stuck onto parcels for next year. She had found (she told us) that if you shellae old cards onto plain wooden screens, with a crazy-quilt effect, you have really got something. And she showed us one of these screens, to prove it. And I do approve of a screen that draws attention to itself, rather than to the thing it hides.

Power to Investigate

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE president's relations with the new Democratic Congress will be determined only in part by the issues which have to do with the appropriation of money, the levying of taxes, the making of laws. The Democrats will now be in control of the power of investigation, and the use they make of this enormous and undefined power will probably determine the relationship between the White House and the Capitol. As between President Eisenhower and the present Democratic leadership of the Congress there are no deep and difficult differences of belief either about foreign or domestic affairs. Why should there be? The whole public career of Gen. Eisenhower until he became president was as an executive officer in a time when the Congress was controlled by the same kind of men, in most cases by the very same men, with whom he is now going to deal. It would require a lot of hair-splitting to find any serious differences of principle between him and them. They have lived and worked together most of their public lives.

The biggest issue between him and them is, as a matter of fact, the question as to whether a Republican or a Democrat is to occupy the White House after the elections of 1956. It is here that the power of investigation could become so important. For it can be used not in order to help Congress make laws, but as an instrument for discrediting and dominating the executive branch of the government.

If the Democratic leadership wanted to destroy the popularity and influence of Eisenhower, they would not be able to do it in the legislative debate about issues. They would have to resort to the abuse of the power of investigation. The Republican leadership of Congress tolerated and connived at the abuse of the investigating power, even when the target was an administration of their own party under a Republican president. The temptation to the Democrats, now that the power is theirs, is obvious.

But there is every reason to think that they have no intention of doing any such thing themselves, or of countenancing and encouraging it by independent operators among them. The Democratic leaders are men of long experience, and in their public lives they have become used to responsibility. Moreover, they are on the whole men who are politically secure, with nothing to gain by beating the tom-toms. Indeed, if we speak the unvarnished truth, Eisenhower is probably nearer in doctrine and conviction to the Democratic leadership of Congress than is any Democrat likely to be who has a chance of being elected president.

PROPER AND IMPROPER
It is possible, I think to draw a fairly clear line between the proper and the improper use of the congressional power of investigation. I do not contend that the rule I am suggesting would apply everywhere and always and in all conceivable cases. But the rule will work most of the time and particularly in the cases which have caused so much anguish, bitterness, and dissension.

The rule is that when Congress is investigating the executive branch of the government, the political head of a department or agency should accept full responsibility for his subordinates and be held accountable for them.

The evil reflected by the case of Gen. Zwicker, which was only one case among many, was not merely that this officer was abused by McCarthy. It was that he, an officer under orders, rather than the secretary of the army who was his political chief, was made answerable for a question of army administration. Stevens was answerable to Congress and he was responsible for Zwicker. It is a grave abuse of the legislative power of investigation if Congress holds Zwicker, rather than Stevens, who is responsible for Zwicker, answerable.

POLITICAL CHIEFS ANSWERABLE
The rule that political chiefs—and not civil servants and military men—are answerable to Congress is fundamental to good administration and to a sound and workable relationship between the executive and the Legislature. In the field of subversion and security risks and corruption the congressional power to investigate should be limited to the responsible political chiefs and it should be addressed to the questions of whether they are exercising their responsibilities so as to justify the confidence of Congress.

If they are not, they should be replaced by other political chiefs. They cannot be replaced, and no attempt should be made to replace them, by the chairman of a Senate investigating committee. That is to change these committees from being instruments for holding the executive accountable into irregular courts exercising without rules or restraint the police power and the judicial power. The chief of a Senate investigating committee cannot reach over the head of the department chief and seize a subordinate in order to put him on trial, without destroying the discipline and the morale of the department.

SUBORDINATES NOT TARGETS
Public opinion is not likely to go far wrong if it applies this rule to legislative investigations: who is being questioned? Is he the boss, who is responsible, or is he someone down the line? If he is the boss who is being questioned, the committee may be acting rightly or wrongly, wisely or foolishly. But it is within its proper limits, and it is not abusing its power.

But if the committee goes after the subordinate, if it places him on trial for his political life, it is usurping the authority of the political chief to judge his own subordinates, to choose them, to promote them, to fire them and to lead them. Then the system is deranged, and the result is the mess we have been seeing.

As we all know how prevalent is this denial of God, there will not be many, including some of our correspondents, who will at all relish the above proposition, but which will be self-evident to those who acknowledge Him.

SWEDENBORGIAN.

'COALMINE TO CASTLE'
There recently appeared in the columns of a certain Victoria newspaper a notice to the effect that Pageant Press Inc., of New York City, were publishing a book of mine about the Dunsinuir family.

The telephone lines between this house and New York have recently been cracking on the subject of "From Coalmine to Castle."

It would seem that a certain section of theatrical society in the American metropolis are highly intrigued since it is rumored that the glamorous Tallulah Bankhead receives a prominent mention in my story.

The wording of my title has also come in for some carping criticism from certain members of my family, who though eulogizing my action in bringing to light the immense and worthwhile part played by the Dunsinuirs in the early development of this province, feel that the idea that "our ancestors may have inhabited a coalmine" is rather implied therein.

Although the publishers seem to think that the title is an apt one, I should be greatly intrigued to know what some of "the old timers" here on Vancouver Island feel that this biographical narrative should be called?

FOR THOSE WHO GIVE BLOOD
Now that income tax payments are about due, would this not be a really good suggestion—every person that donates a pint of blood to the Red Cross should be entitled to a $20 receipt? I feel positive the Red Cross would gladly consider this as a very wise move to increase their blood bank.

After all, it's a medical service and should be worth a receipt. Church and medical donations are 100 per cent deductible, so why not honor the donor? They deserve at least that much!

'From Which We Drank in Joy'

ONE of my bus friends and I have taken to singing the Richardson Street version of "The Old Oaken Bucket." It recalls the Crystal Spring, which is dear to the memory as a scene of our childhood.

My friend, who knows the district well, argues that it's high time the spring started running again. It used to be channeled from the silver sands of its source through a big conduit to an iron stand pipe. From that it spilled into a circular cement basin in the boulevard fronting the old Wootton property.

Thirsty passers-by, of an earlier day could kneel and drink from the standpipe—performing a genuflection to this small oasis on a dry journey.

As time went on, more homes were built above the Wootton property. Sewage from faulty plumbing and contaminated drainages oozed into the well and the spring was condemned by the health department.

It seems to my friend that modern sewers and drain systems should have eliminated that pollution. For the sake of old times she thinks another test should be run on the spring. If it has been restored to its early purity, then she would like to see it re-established in its earlier form, available to the public. So would I.

She has no doubts over the quantity of water available. The other night she passed that way and heard it running like Niagara. And living across the street from the old standpipe are acquaintances of hers who say there's so much spring water under their house they're afraid they may float away.

Maybe the wish to see it restored is sheer sentimentality. Still, it was an old landmark and some landmarks can serve a pretty valuable purpose in supporting tradition.

There are a few hundred Victorians who have drunk from that spring and pronounced it the finest water on the south end of the Island. An earlier generation can remember childhood days when it was their source of refreshment.

At that time, kids in the southeast end of the city—kids who counted a dime big pocket money—used to walk to town Saturday mornings to see the nickel show at the old Pantages. Returning by foot, they broke their march at the spring, drank and let the water run over their heads to revive them for the remaining journey.

At an earlier date, when the water drawn by the city from its old Elk Lake system went bad, folks came from miles around to fill pitchers and barrels there.

My friend recalls childhood treks with a small wagon and preserving jars from her View Street home to the spring for a supply of drinking water. She was very young then. The event was adventure. The trip took hours as the little ones gathered moon daisies on the way.

Perhaps the day is past when attention should be given to reminders of earlier times. It's simple enough to get water now by a turn of the tap—and it comes out all properly antiseptic, as it should, in spite of Lydia's fears.

Yet it seems to me that sites like the Crystal Spring should be preserved and remembered. The same should be done with the old mooring rings at the foot of Fort Street, where the trading ships of an early day tied up after heroic journeys under sail. Nobody wants to go duck-shooting in the McKenzie Street region of Fairfield, where oldtimers remember a big slough. And there's no reason why Johnson Street ravine should be reopened because a few Alims at some of the picture houses built on the fill justify a lower level. There's no demand for a return to dirt streets—quite the contrary.

But it could be very valuable for the city to single out the institutions of an earlier day—and the Crystal Spring was one of them—to remind new generations and newcomers that Victoria existed before the advent of television—even before progress placed the stamp of mass production, mass-mindedness and soft living on the modern town. A city needs its roots, too.

$10 Million Tax Lien Filed on B.C. Man

Millionaire George W. Norgan Challenged By U.S. Tax Collector on Alleged Arrears

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Glen T. Jamison, district director of the internal revenue service, Thursday filed a tax lien for $10,108,604.66 against George W. Norgan of Vancouver.

The lien is for income taxes, penalties and interest alleged to be due for the years 1944 through 1946. Norgan owned the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League until he sold his interests last year.

Employees in the office of Francisco county recorder Thomas A. Toomey said the lien is the largest ever filed here. Norgan was one of three Vancouver directors of United Distillers of Canada Ltd. who were indicted by a federal grand jury in New York last May 11

Assessments Uprouar Groundless—Bennett

Premier Blames Newspaper Editorials For 'Confusion' on New School Tax Plan

Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday charged B.C. newspapers were "creating confusion in the minds of the public" on his government's assessment equalization moves.

The premier issued a formal statement further explaining the impact of assessment equalization, which has resulted in thousands of queries to municipal officials from anxious taxpayers.

He said he has already issued three statements on the question, and accused newspapers of not giving them sufficient display in their news columns, and adding to the confusion by their editorials.

Thursday's statement reiterated his earlier comments that property owners' increased assessments are "no cause for alarm."

He said the increases stemmed mainly from application of the "Assessment Equalization Act, which is designed to produce, over three years, an equalized assessment base for:

1. Computing equitable provincial grants;
2. Dividing education costs fairly between component municipal and rural areas of school districts;
3. Attaining a wide and equitable diffusion of the smaller part of total education costs raised by real property taxation.

"Although the proposed educational formula will use as a to raise the same number of tax dollars as in 1954," said the premier.

"It was announced in December that financial measures are proposed to protect the fiscal position of municipalities, and generally to provide a reduction in the tax dollars paid by most residential property tax owners for education in 1955," he said.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

A Doctor's Questions

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

A doctor writes to answer me for having complained that we professional men are often too taciturn. He said what is perfectly true, and that is that many highly neurotic patients hardly let their doctor say a word; they try to do all the talking!

Many and many a time, when I have tried to say something to such a patient, she has cut right in. Apparently, she had no interest in what I was wanting to say. I wondered why she had ever come in to see me, unless it was just to hear herself talk.

As my doctor-correspondent went on to say, he wished devoutly that more patients knew how to come to the point quickly. Then he'd have so much more time in which to help them. As it is, much of his day is wasted listening to rambling talk which does not help him in understanding the nature of his patients' illnesses. He so wishes that his people would talk about the essential things, and not waste a half-hour of his time on unessential details.

Yes, I know; I agree; but most persons cannot possibly know which are the important symptoms and which the unimportant ones. But the wise person will mention first the more painful and distressing symptoms. Also, the man who wants to help his doctor make a diagnosis will never waste time telling what other doctors have diagnosed or given in the way of treatment.

THE WRONG ANSWERS

So often, when I ask a patient, "What is your trouble?" he says, "an ulcer" or "a low blood sugar." That is someone's diagnosis; which may or may not be right; what I want to know is, what are the symptoms? Without knowing them I cannot make a diagnosis. Commonly, when I have to get a history out of a patient it seems as if the devil were in him, thwarting me at every turn, leaving out any mention of important symptoms, and confusing me with long stories of minor complaints.

To illustrate: a woman may complain bitterly of a slight misery in her side, while concealing such tremendously important facts as that on several occasions she has had epileptic spells, that once she was in a mental hospital, and that much of her trouble is due to her constant sorrow over a feeble-minded child or a husband who is drinking heavily.

Automatic Machines Predicted for Mills

PORT ALBERNI—In a New Year message to the members of IWA Local 185, secretary Jack Moore predicted a greater use of automatic machinery by the milling companies.

"This eventually will cut down the number of people employed and will increase production immensely," he said.

He estimated that new equipment installed in the district, which would employ six additional people, will "increase production in the mill by half."

"We will be faced with a very real and complex problem when large electronic machines replace thousands of workers on the American continent."

He said that it was likely that construction would commence in 1955 on a new pulp mill and plywood plant in the Tahsis-Muchalat area of the west coast.

Vancouver Island Recruits In RCAF Total 566 in Year

A total of 566 Vancouver Islanders entered the RCAF through the local recruiting unit in 1954.

Operating its main island recruiting office at 1315 Government Street, and sending periodic mobile squads to up-island centres, the unit signed up 421 airmen for ground crews, 63 airmen for air crews, 78 airwomen, and a few other men for different air force branches.

Top month last year was February, when 76 persons enlisted.

Low month in 1954 was May, when only 28 people joined up. Recruiting officials say that the number of prospects varies according to the employment situation. If jobs are scarce, the unit does brisk business.

Of those who did join, 30 per cent were from up-island points and the rest from the Greater Victoria area. Some were men re-entering the service, but most were "first-timers."

"That isn't the case. We're happy to answer questions from anyone, regardless of whether or not they want to or are eligible to join."

Teachers' Pay Dispute Sent To Arbitration

DUNCAN (CP)—Negotiation of the 1955 salary schedule between the Board of District 65, Cowichan, and teachers of the Cowichan District Teachers' Association has been referred to an arbitration board.

The action was announced at a special school board meeting Thursday night by George E. Bonner, chairman.

The arbitration board is expected to convene in Duncan later this month.

During negotiations, the board offered the teachers a renewal of the 1954 salary schedule. The teachers asked for an approximate 7 per cent increase. The increase, if granted, would cost an additional $20,000 a year.

Elementary teachers' salaries now range from $2,065 to $4,305 annually.

Secondary salary schedule ranges from $2,715 to $5,275.

Resumes Operations

CHEMAINUS—Logging operations at Copper Canyon resumed this week after a 10-day holiday shutdown.

Camp personnel supervisor Dave McIvor reported only a thin sprinkle of snow on the ground at the camp and four sides working. Only four or five inches of snow covered the ground in the hills back of operations.

Tee Topics

By BILL WALKER

"You're smiling tonight," said Bill Ezinicki, as your agent ducked his way through naked hockey players in the gloom that was the Vancouver Canucks' dressing room—except for the aforementioned Mr. Ezinicki.

Because what Bill wanted to talk about was golf, a game he plans to turn into his own bread and butter business when his hockey career is at an end.

"But say," he interjected, "what was that course I spotted on the coast? It certainly looked in wonderful shape."

When informed that Victoria really was the "ever-green playground" and not the pretender to the title that one particular other city lays claim to, Bill, believe it or not, agreed it looked that way, even on his first visit here.

"You know, it rains too much for me in Vancouver, he confided, while admitting that he hadn't yet found time for golf, his hockey conditioning being his prime concern at the moment.

The suggestion of a game here in the near future got an immediate response, however. "I'd love to," said Bill, who works as a professional out of the Colonial Club of Boston in the off season.

"Chapman's willing," your agent answered of the consent needed from his hockey coach.

Match in the Making

And thus the wheels began to turn. "Any way you set it up would be fine with me," said Bill to the suggestion that he partner Oak Bay pro Phil Taylor against two of the top-flight city amateurs.

"Maybe the next time we come over, or in the spring," Taylor later was in quick accord with the proposal.

For Ezinicki, you understand, isn't any fly-by-night professional, except when it comes to hockey, a trade he intends to follow until his talents are no longer wanted.

"Then it's golf for me," he asserted. "I intend to make it my livelihood."

Bill took a fling on the Gold Trail a while back. "I didn't make much money, but enjoyed every minute of it," he said. "The competition—it's terrific."

No Extra Nips Now

He added the footnote that professional golf is such a competitive but also a profitable business now that there's no profit in it unless you really stick to business. "You don't see many taking that extra nip or two any more," he said. "Not like they used to do."

More eloquent than most, as athletes go, Bill belies the rugged character he portrays as a forward for the Canucks hockey team. Rather he has the professional polish of a club pro. And when he does play here—in golf, that is—don't bet he won't pick up the marbles, friendly though the match may be.

Meanwhile, locally, it's the second round of the monthly medal matches, starting at Colwood Club, Sunday. Bob Fleming took down first-round honors with Jim Robertson next in line.

Incidentally, that challenge thrown out by Colwood to their five best will take on any other club five, or any other five, for any amount, and at any time, isn't so far fetched as it might appear in the uneducated in such matters. It would take some mighty fine par-hustling to take the stakes away from Bill McColl, Jim Robertson, George Andrews, Laurie Kerr and Vic Painter.

A match like this would be an excellent forerunner to an intercity competition with Vancouver as proposed here in the past.

For Leo Derman's benefit, here's the way we'd pick the opposition—Bob Fleming, John Merriman, Frank Scroggy, Bob Morrison and, if he'll play, Eric Hiberson.

If memory serves correctly the men's B.C. Closed should come to Victoria Club this year. And don't forget those night school classes, you duffers (who's talking?). It's the easiest way out if you can't get out to the course. There are some openings Tuesday night, we understand.

National Golf Day this year will be held on June 4 at San Francisco with Babe Zaharias joining Ed Furgol in the annual match against the nation's duffers. Last year bantam Ben Hogan fired a 64 at the field. This is a commendable event as all proceeds go toward junior golf development.

Louis M. Jacobs, well-known concessionaire who has owned the club since formation of the AHL in 1940, was given the right of repurchase in the event Chicago ever re-sells the franchise.

The accusing referee's finger has taken most of the shenanigans out of National Hockey League play.

No sooner had the league rules committee warned referees to stamp out sassy talk and rough play, than the big league boys suddenly discovered the finer points of hockey etiquette.

Thursday the second-place Red Wings and fourth-place Boston Bruins battled to a 3-3 tie at Detroit in a game interrupted by only eight minor penalties. Canadiens walloped Chicago Black Hawks 6-0 at Montreal. Referee Red Storey called six minors in that one.

HOWE GETS PAIR — There were two stars—not counting referee Bill Chadwick who did a fine job—at Detroit. Red Wing ace Gordie Howe and leftwinger Real Chevrefils of the Bruins each scored two goals before 9,298 Detroit Olympia fans. Howe now has 17 for the season.

The Wings, five points behind Canadiens in the league race, had to come from behind on Marty Pavelich's unassisted goal at 15:33 of the third period to gain the lead.

Goalie Jacques Plante chalked up his third shutout of the season as Canadiens trounced Hawks before 14,324 fans. He was called on to make only 20 stops. Chicago net-minder Al Rollins kicked out 21 Montreal drives.

Jean Beliveau led the Montrealers with two goals to run his output to 20 this season.

Los Angeles Open Brings Out Unknowns

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—The three-ring circus known as the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament, goes into the second round today with the shot-makers hoping that Mr. Weatherman will co-operate.

Playing through rain and wind Thursday, these stars emerged as first day leaders in the four-day $32,500 event: Men professionals—Bo Wininger, Oklahoma City, with a three-under-par 33-35-68.

Women professionals—Carol Bowman, Richmond, Calif., with a three-over-par 36-38-74.

Men amateurs—Gene Andrews, national public links champion from Los Angeles, with a 35-35-70.

Of the three, only Andrews could be considered a serious championship threat prior to Thursday's scores. Wininger hasn't won a major tournament in recent outings. Mrs. Bowman, who joined the touring circuit just last summer, hasn't come close, although she has done well enough to pay expenses.

On identical tracks 700 feet long down a gentle slope, he reduced descent times from 61 and 83 seconds with conventional wax to between 42 and 54 seconds.

Flyers Roll On To Stretch Lead

Whip Royals; Stampeders Edge Quakers

Edmonton 7, Westminster 2
Calgary 3, Saskatoon 2

New Westminster Royals came home shivering and winless from four frozen days on the Prairies today but as compensation they still have a good hold on the Western Hockey League's No. 3 position.

Royals held a 2-1 first-period advantage over Edmonton Flyers Thursday night before the first-place Flyers cracked the threat and swept to a 7-2 victory for their 11th straight game without defeat.

In the night's other game Calgary Stampeders came from behind to nip Saskatoon Quakers 3-2 and take over sole possession of second place.

Quakers called the tune 1-0 in the first period, 2-1 in the middle frame, and looked as though they would hold until eight minutes before the end. Then Calgary bounced with two goals in 49 seconds.

For New Westminster it was their third defeat in the four-game Prairie swing. The other match was a tie against Saskatoon.

Gord Fashoway opened scoring at 7:22 of the first period for New Westminster with assists from Guyle Fielder and Jim Zarie. Edmonton's Keith Allen retaliated at 13:14 on passes from Bronco Horvath, the league's top scorer, and Johnny Bucyk.

Motto McLean was back for the Royals at 17:22 with help from Doug Adam and Bobby Love.

QUICK RETALIATION

And then Edmonton took over. Four second-period goals came from Enlo Scilizzi, Horvath, Ray Hannigan and Eddie Stankiewicz.

Joe Malo fired two goals in the final 20 minutes to make the Flyers' score even more substantial.

BRENNAN WITH STAMPS

Quakers took the lead in Calgary when Len Haley stuck a low one past replacement goaltender Doug Stevenson. He was called in when Bill Brennan was cut on the forehead in the first period. Four stitches were needed to close the gash.

Doug Bentley blunked the second light for Saskatoon. Calgary's winning goals came from Ray Barry, Sid Finney and George Pargeter.

Only action scheduled tonight was in Vancouver where the Canucks will meet Victoria Cougars.

Oak Bay Wanderers do not have a game scheduled this week-end but they will keep in practice with an exhibition game against Vancouver Ex-Tech at Windsor Park Saturday at 2:30.

The Ex-Tech side is leading the strong Vancouver second division and is being groomed as an addition to the first division next season.

The local second division and midge league will have the week-end off, no games being scheduled in their leagues. They will resume their schedules the following week-end.

REAY REMEMBERS, COUGH!

Bill's Presence Still Felt Here

Vancouver Canucks showed off Bill Ezinicki for the first time here Wednesday night, the former Peck's Bad Boy of the Toronto Maple Leafs leaving his mark on the fans.

They learned to hate him for his robust body hitting.

But what wasn't known at the time—Ezinicki also left his mark on a Cougar.

Coach Billy Reay was the near casualty when he stopped an Ezinicki check with his breast bone.

The breast bone survived, but barely, and Reay will be under harness when the two clubs resume this week's private Western Hockey League feud at Vancouver tonight.

His chest will be taped to prevent undue strain caused by heavy breathing.

However, Reay is the only member of the club below par as the Cougars seek to take the rubber of the week's series, the Canucks having won the first, 4-2, and the Cougars the second, 7-4.

Cougars stay on the mainland following the contest for a game against the New Westminster Royals Saturday night.

ONE QUALITY — THE BEST

On The OUTDOOR FRONT

With DENNY BOYD

Some famous author, I think it was John Galsworthy, wrote an intriguing short story entitled "Quality."

It was about an aged German bootmaker many years ago who operated a hole-in-the-wall bootery in the days when customers brought in their own leather and the bootmaker toiled them according to the customer's wants.

This particular old coddger was crusty and principled. He refused to use cut-rate methods or cut-rate goods. If the King himself brought in a cheap piece of leather for shoes, the old man would have asked him to take his business elsewhere.

If you think the story ended with the old bootmaker making a million dollars from his wares, you are wrong. He tried to stick by his high principles through the Industrial Revolution and went broke. While people walked by his shop wearing cheap machine-made shoes, he starved to death, his shop windows full of the best boots in Europe.

It was a poignant story and there was no moral in it, only a bitter complaint against conditions that put low price and quantity ahead of quality.

The story came to mind one day this week during a bull-session with a local sporting goods dealer over the comparative cost and quality of various plugs.

I have never met Bill Minser and I know him only as the man who created the Lucky Louie line of plugs that have been consistently popular and effective for almost 20 years.

While other plugs have come and gone, the Louie has remained a good seller and a good fish-catcher throughout the years while never reaching the sweeping popularity that some lures have experienced for one or two years. Minser has regulated his output so as not to cause a glut on the market.

Boots or Plugs—Quality Counts

But to get back to the story.

The local retailer was visiting Minser in his Washington home and they dropped down to the basement to look over some new plugs.

There was a huge pile of unfinished plugs near the furnace. The retailer casually asked what they were for.

Minser said, "As soon as I get a minute I am going to burn them."

The retailer almost swallowed his cigarette but asked why in thunderation such a huge load of plugs was heading for the furnace. He could see no apparent defects in the plugs.

Minser replied, "They're culs. Some of them were bored off-centre, some weren't grooved right."

"But why," asked the retailer, "Don't you give them away to kids?"

"What?" roared Minser. "You want me to give away defective plugs with the name Lucky Louie stamped on them? The kids would take them out, they wouldn't work right and the kids would think all Louie plugs were like that. Those ones are going into the furnace."

Those plugs could have been put on the market and sold. But they were not. And I was reminded of one of the last lines in Galsworthy's story: "Nobody is interested in quality any more."

Oh yeah?

Steelhead reports are beginning to pick up, particularly from the Cowichan River.

Wally Dunham made a quick business trip up-Island this week and came back with the following tips:

Fellow named Lucky Humphries from Vernon picked up a 14½-pounder out of the Chemalvus River, Jan. 2.

Ron Gamey of Duncan took 8 and 12-pounders out of the Cowichan River this week. Freddy Frieze beached a 19-pounder. B. Bell picked up 7 and 10-pounders and A. Calk caught 5 and 10½-pounders—all from the lower reaches of the Cowichan. And Wally reported seeing plenty of fat and sassy five- and six-pounders brought out on Cherry Bobbers, Egg-Nog flies and Tee-Spoon lures.

21-Year Veteran Bob Taylor Signs Again With MGM; Earnings to Date, $3 Million

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Robert Taylor, who already holds the record for longest exclusive contract of an MGM star, has just signed on for another six years. Next month, handsome Bob will have given 21 of his best years to the company. The only star who can beat that mark is Bing Crosby, who has been at Paramount for 23 years. Since the departure of Clark Gable, Taylor has been called the new king of MGM.

Bob is back on the lot doing some retakes for "Many Rivers to Cross," and I found him in the studio's version of a staid mite cavern. I asked him about the new contract.

"Well, they wanted me to sign, so I took them up on it," he explained. Then he reflected: "You know, I've made a heck of a lot of money from the studio in 21 years, and I've got doggone little to show for it." Best guess is that MGM has paid Taylor about $3,000,000.

PIONEER CITY SHOWMAN DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Veteran Victoria showman, Edward Redmond, 82, has died in San Jose, California, according to word reaching Victoria today.

Mr. Redmond was manager of the old York Theatre during the late 1920s and operated then as the Pantages. At one stage of his career, Mr. Redmond operated his own stock company and is reported to have given a start to Eddie Cantor, the late Walter Huston and Roscoe Karns. Word of his death was received by Mrs. Daisy Ruddock, 2059 Marjion, whose daughter danced in some of his productions here.

Lisner, Beny Show Marks New Outlook

The new year at the Art Gallery has started out with two exhibitions of considerable interest by Canadian artists—Arthur Lisner and Roloff Beny. The measure of the difference between the two, both in subject matter and technique, is a perfect illustration of the change of outlook which has occurred in Canadian painting over the last 35 years.

Revolutionary in its own time as the Group of Seven, with whom Lisner was associated, appeared to be in Canada, its members rarely indulged in the kind of technical virtuosity that Roloff Beny and so many other young painters are displaying now. Did Frederick Varley ever get his textures by pressing dozens of colored glass beads into thick masses of paint? Effective though these experiments may be, are they painting?

They are certainly art. Roloff Beny, who was born on the prairies, has had the chance in the last 10 years to absorb the best of what Europe and the U.S. have offered him in the way of training and experience. Whether he is working with oils, water colors, collages or lithographs, the technical brilliance of his achievement is beyond question.

Musical of Leacock Book Hailed as 'Hit'

LONDON, Ont. (BUP)—Critics who saw the world premiere Thursday night of the musical "Sunshine Town" acclaimed the production today as a "Canadian hit."

A first-night capacity audience of prominent citizens and out-of-town guests gave a warm welcome to the stage premiere of Mavor Moore's musical version of Stephen Leacock's "Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town."

The all-Canadian musical was televised a few weeks ago by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The show was done earlier as a dramatic television series.

Theatre critic J. Burke Martin of the London Free Press said today that "the sly Leacock humor has been preserved in this well-integrated book, every line and every note of which was penned by the versatile Mr. Moore."

"It's a thoroughly professional job which needs only a bit of editing here and there to carry it into the hearts of Canadian audiences coast to coast," he added.

Kidnap Charge Against O'Brien Dropped by Crown

VANCOUVER (CP)—A kidnap conspiracy charge against Daniel O'Brien, 64-year-old former union business agent, was dropped by the crown here.

O'Brien was convicted more than a year ago of conspiring to kidnap a young married woman neighbor and was sentenced to five years. Court of Appeal ordered a retrial and the ruling was upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Tuesday, Victor L. Dryer, assistant prosecutor at O'Brien's trial, told Mr. Justice J. M. Coady the attorney general had instructed him to seek a stay of proceedings.

GUNDERSON REPORTS

Labor Costs Restrict Foreign Capital

Foreign investment in B.C. will be restricted to plants processing the province's natural resources or by use of hydro power because of the high cost of labor here, provincial economic advisor Einar Gunderson said Thursday.

Because of the labor cost, plants could not profitably sell produce in competitive world markets, he told a joint meeting of the Rotary and the Sales Executive Clubs.

Mr. Gunderson, former B.C. finance minister, recently returned from an extensive European tour designed to encourage two-way trade, to interest foreign capital in B.C. and to interest industrialists in establishing in B.C.

Concerning the recent difference of opinion between Ottawa and the B.C. government on selling certain water rights from the Columbia River to the U.S., he said "water is our greatest asset, as it is renewable, and has been running for centuries and nobody has done anything about it. But, oddly enough, nobody says anything about selling gas and oil, which are expendable." "People," he added, "are funny."

Mr. Gunderson said trade would eventually be resumed from here with the Orient, and investment in B.C. by industry was the main way to get in on that market.

Only under exceptional circumstances can you look after this market from eastern Canada. It is just too far away.

Interest in B.C. was widespread among industrialists and bankers he visited throughout Europe, said Mr. Gunderson.

Feeling was that Canada was a safe country in which to invest. France, which manufactures its own aluminum under government subsidy, could buy Canadian aluminum cheaper if the country only had the dollars, he said.

Britain's improving industrial position was gradually taking her towards convertibility, and the future there "looked good." British investors had been asked to come and see what B.C. had to offer.

offered, in keeping with government economic policy of endeavoring to attract "capital and brains."

B.C.'s future within the next ten years, Mr. Gunderson predicted, "will be greater than our most optimistic dreams."

DROODLES

When he was 15 my no-good Brother Duke had a fantastic ambition to beat Doc Skeen's pin-ball machine. The muscle in his right arm was four inches bigger than his left just from pulling back the plunger and he dislocated three vertebrae in his spine from using body english. He even had a pair of shoes with one heel an inch higher than the other so Doc couldn't tell when he was tilting the machine; but Doc caught him and refused to pay off when he cheated. Finally he worked out a plan. He got the four Scarbo brothers, who worked in their dad's blacksmith shop to help him. Duke would go in and play the machine very quietly while the Scarbo brothers stayed outside and tilted the drug store.

Last Bus Robber Got Seven-Year Term

Armed hold-up of a bus driver here Thursday night was the first such incident since 1939.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines driver Edwin Mulholland, 4029 Carey Road, was grazed on the arm by a bullet when an unmasked gunman fired a shot in a hold-up December 13, 1939, at a Douglas-Agnes bus terminal. He got a small amount of money.

The man approaching from the rear of the bus, stepped inside and demanded the driver's cash. When Mulholland didn't immediately answer, the robber fired the shot.

The bullet found later in the bus was fired from a .32-calibre revolver. The thug was picked out of a police lineup by the bus driver, convicted in court and sentenced to seven years.

Limping Bandit Robs Busman

$35 Raid Linked With City Hold-Up

By RON COULTER

A "slightly-built man who walks with a shuffle" is the object of an intensive search by Saanich and city police today following armed robbery of a B.C. Electric bus driver Thursday night of $35.

Police say the man also may be connected with the Dec. 15 hold-up of Industrial Acceptance Corporation, 640 Fort, when $230 was stolen.

Bus driver John Townsend was alone when robbed at gunpoint at the Richmond-Cedar Hill terminal for the Mount Tolle bus Thursday night about 9.10. The masked bandit entered the bus, threatened him with a gun and took most of his money.

"I was sitting alone in the bus reading a TV magazine when I heard footsteps on the gravel outside coming from the rear of the bus," he said.

He said the man stepped inside, and said: "Stick 'em up." Townsend, who knows several people residing in that area, thought someone was trying to fool him.

Then he realized the robber was serious. "I didn't take any chances. The guy could have been trigger happy," he said.

Townsend gave a roll of bills from an inside jacket pocket to the gunman, who also took his change machine.

The bandit then said "Get going, fella." Townsend drove about 200 yards before stopping and rushing into a house to phone police.

The victim has been driving for the BCE for six years and was taking over for another driver on holidays. He resides at 3461 Shelbourne. "This was my first night shift in over a year," he said.

Limping Loiterer Described

The hold-up took place near St. Aidan's United Church.

Rev. J. L. Clernhue said that he observed a man about 8 p.m. coming up the sidewalk who walked with a shuffle.

He said today that he couldn't tell what the man had on, as it was dark. "His attention was drawn to the man by his gait," Marjorie Vaughan, choir leader at the church, said she observed a man "dressed in a dark coat, slightly built who walked with a shuffle, or 'limp,' apparently loitering at the bus stop about the same time.

She said the man was walking up the street ahead of her. "He looked as if he was waiting around for something," she said.

Description of the man tallies with that of the bandit armed with an air pistol who robbed Industrial Acceptance Corporation of $230 on Dec. 15.

Loan company employees described the masked robber then as about 5 feet 9 inches tall, 140 pounds and about 25 years old. He walked with a limp.

Townsend did not get a clear view of the gun held by the bandit Thursday night.

"It was so shadowy that I knew he had something in his hand. It looked like a German Luger. It could have been an air pistol," he said when shown an air pistol (a weapon as lethal as a .22 at close range) resembles a Luger in design.

Mainland Men Plead Guilty To Drug Charge

Pleas of guilty of possessing drugs were entered by two mainland men when they appeared in city police court this morning as a result of a police raid on their hotel room here New Year's Eve. They were remanded to January 12.

Daniel King, 31, and Robert Dale Castonguay, 24, admitted being drug addicts, according to evidence of RCMP Corporal Douglas Rogers.

With RCMP Constables Keith Alexander and Reg Blackmore, he conducted the search which turned up a bundle of diacetyl morphine and diacetyl morphine chloride, plus a hypodermic syringe.

Although the men were not in the room at the time, it was registered in their names.

The pair were arrested with two other men and a 17-year-old girl, all of whom are awaiting sentence in juvenile court. Charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency have been read to the other men, and the girl has been charged with being a juvenile delinquent.

RACE TRACK

Anita today, confirmed that he has agreed to invest in the company proposed to handle the track.

However, he said, it would be a Victoria project and operated by local people. Mr. Farris could not be reached for comment.

Mr. Hoskin and William Lochhead, president of the West Coast Horsemen's Association, are members of the company being formed.

"It will be a public company," Mr. Hoskin said. He did not indicate what shares would be available.

CASEY IN DARK

It was to Mr. Lochhead and Mr. Hoskin that the city granted an exploratory lease of the property. Reeve Casey said all he knew about city dealings were what he saw in the papers "and I would very much like to know what went on at the meeting."

Mr. Lochhead and Mr. Hoskin are both officials of the WCHA and the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association, but neither of these two groups is financially interested in the track. The HBPA represents horsemen on every recognized track in North America and without HBPA sanction it would be impossible to hold a full-scale race meet.

FALL FAIR PLAN

The B.C. Agricultural Association plans to operate an exhibition in conjunction with the track and president K. R. Derbyshire said "one or two" buildings could be ready for the fall. Initial cost would be $100,000, he said, with an additional $100,000 investment yearly for five years to reach full exhibition capacity.

"But there is no question but that the people of Saanich will have to favor the project before we go ahead," he said. "I think the council did the right thing in endorsing the control by-law." Exhibition buildings would take 10 acres of the 90-acre area.

He said the site chosen was excellent, and the average family could reach there from Victoria easily.

He said also some government grants could be expected to establish a Grade A Fair, with exhibits from the PNE and the Saanich fair anticipated. The fair would follow a week after the Saanich and mainland events, which end Labor Day.

Diver Begins Salvaging Beached Tug

Salvage operations commenced today on the Victoria Island Navigator, beached Wednesday after striking a reef in Kyquoot Sound, 150 miles north of Port Alberni.

The tug's nose is ashore, and her stern under water. She lies at a 45 degree fore-and-aft angle, and is secured to the beach by cables lashed to trees.

She is owned by Island Tug and Barge, and another of the company's towboats, Island Commander, is at the scene with salvage equipment.

Diver Jack Daley made underwater surveys Thursdays, and today was helping effect temporary repairs to the hull, ripped open when the tug struck a reef whose charted position was marked "approximate."

Harold B. Elworthy, president of Island Tug and Barge, reached the scene Thursday aboard Island Commander, and has reported back to head office that Island Navigator's condition is "not too bad."

She will be repaired temporarily on the scene, and brought back to Victoria in company with Island Commander, for drydocking and permanent repairs.

Captain George Dance and his crew of nine escaped injury in the accident.

Pioneer Sailmaker F. J. Jeune Dies; 69 Years in Trade

Frederick John Jeune, sailmaker and founder of one of Victoria's longest established businesses, died Thursday at the age of 92.

Mr. Jeune started his sailmaking business in Victoria 69 years ago and the firm, which turns out all manner of canvas goods, is still prospering. He remained active in the business himself until about two years ago.

Born in Jersey, Channel Islands, Mr. Jeune was the son of a sea captain. He quit school at the age of 12 and became apprenticed to a sailmaker. Five and a half years later, his apprenticeship ended, he went to sea. He was sailmaker on a barque which sailed around Cape Horn and one of four men who sailed a small, topsail schooner across the Atlantic four times.

He came to Victoria aboard the barque Rover of the Sea.

He worked for a time on pilot boats and then went to work in a ship chandlery. In November, 1886, he went into business for himself with a capital of only $9. He rented a ramshackle two-story building at the foot of Johnson Street which had once been a dance hall.

Competition in the sailmaking business was keen. Rivals represented the newcomer. Several times Mr. Jeune arrived at his shop to find his sign torn down and the front of the building tarred.

But skill attracted business and his shop became the busiest in the city.

At one time, his brother Philip was a partner in the firm. Fred Jeune bought him out for $20,000 after a disagreement over business methods. Later, Mr. Jeune took his sons into partnership.

During the Second World War the firm employed 50 persons and turned out gear for the army and navy, including Carey floats.

Mr. Jeune is survived by his three sons: Frederick, Percy and Herbert.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1.30 at Hayward's chapel. Interment will be at Ross Bay Cemetery.

He quit because the Socialists sought to set terms for their support which he could not accept.

Packaged or Fresh From the Ground, 'Taters Are Good

By PENNY SAVER

Have you tried packaged potatoes? For last-minute lunches or dinners, they're the ideal short-cut. Ten large servings in an eight-ounce package, and only 28 cents! In a few minutes you have fluffy, white mashed potatoes that take so little effort to prepare. Simply add water and beat! An easy-to-remember recipe for potato soup is printed on the package and it sounds delicious.

These wonderful dried foods have bolstered up many a meal in our house!

Here are more "taters" the real thing, this time. New "red skin" potatoes are now in town, selling at two pounds for 27 cents. Sweet potatoes (how I love them!) are in all sizes and shapes, and you can buy large ones, round ones, small ones, any kind you want for 39 cents for two pounds. Baked with that ham, sliced along your Sunday roast... ah-h-h... sheer ambrosia!

Leafy endive heads are selling for 25 cents. Crisp and colorful, they're wonderful for those of you (I mean us!) who are counting calories. In a fresh fruit or vegetable salad, they add interest to eating.

Oranges are still selling for 90 cents! Nuts and puddings have dropped in price, too. These aren't foods that we eat only during the holiday season, so why not stock up now while they're selling for such low prices?

I was sorely tempted by the plump, white mushrooms that are selling for 78 cents a pound. I could just vision them broiling, frying or bubbling in my favorite Italian spaghetti sauce! Mushrooms can be eaten with almost any type of food... and that suits me fine!

There's no guesswork when you buy packaged cauliflower... They're in cellophane and each package contains approximately 15 ounces of white, white solid cauliflower. Such a weight constitutes a good-sized head! For 33 cents you end your worries about discovering, after you arrive home with your vegetables, that the lovely looking head was really eaten and discolored inside! In cellophane you can see each section of the cauliflower.

I saw more rhubarb today at the very sight made my mouth water! A fresh rhubarb pie is my idea of perfection. It's being sold for 33 cents a stalk. Have you tried rhubarb stewed with walnuts? It's a rich and a wonderful dessert.

Speaking of dessert... how about some after dinner, after dessert mints? These are actually molasses mint and mint nougat chews. And are they good! Eighty cents will buy you a pound of these yummy candies.

Jubilee Studies Need for Bigger Psycho Clinic

Increased demand for ward space for psychiatric cases in Victoria may mean another addition to the almost new psychiatric clinic at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Jubilee administrator George Masters said today there has been a high occupancy and some consideration will be given by the hospital board to increasing the size of the clinic.

Built in 1948, it became necessary to add eight more beds a year ago. At the same time kitchen and lounge facilities were increased to a size suitable to accommodate another eight.

No need to fret that the scooped-necked sweater will suddenly pop off the shoulders. Now there's elastic knitted right into it so you can go all evening with that smooth uncovered line and no worries.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Do You Feel Unglamorous? Maybe Weight Has Gone Up

Are you feeling definitely unglamorous? Have you lost that feeling of personal attractiveness you once had? Sometimes life loses its excitement because of worries and mental depression but often it is simply a question of weight.

I can tell when I have gained five or more pounds, without ever getting on the scales. All of a sudden, the clothes I liked so well seem to have lost their punch. They look entirely different. I like crazy hats. I had thought that they looked quite peppy, but suddenly they just look silly. High heels seem higher, the design on prints larger and the materials thicker.

If your overweight is robbing you of your self-confidence, join Marathon and get it over with. You can lose 20 pounds in eight weeks time. Let me give you a few hints, which will help you.

1. Do not weigh yourself every day. This is discouraging. Weigh only at the end of each week.

2. Measure yourself before beginning and at the end of every two weeks. By the end of two weeks you will begin to see a difference in your measurements.

You may have to diet for several days before losing any at all, and you will probably have to exercise faithfully for two weeks before taking in the tape measure at all. That is why I warn you not to weigh or measure except at the intervals indicated. I know that this will be difficult to do because you will be anxious to see what you have accomplished, but follow this advice. It will guarantee you no disappointments and happy surprises.

Many women give up dieting because they stick to a diet for three or four days, without any resulting loss. This is not unusual. Suddenly you will find that you have dropped from three to five pounds.

Remember, too, that it took you a long time to accumulate those extra pounds and bulges, much more than eight weeks. Nature is most forgiving in that she allows us to make such great improvement in ourselves so rapidly.

The letters are pouring in. If you would like to join thousands of other women in Marathon send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my new Marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Measure yourself before beginning the Marathon and at the end of every two weeks.

EXPERT SAYS

American Women Lack Taste In Furnishing Their Homes

CHICAGO (AP)—An advertising consultant says the "average American woman has created not the house beautiful but the house terrible."

Bernice Fitzgibbon, formerly advertising director for Gimbels, a New York department store, added that "most American women who are sure they have created tasteful interiors are really living in shudderingly bad homes."

"The average homemaker is no more equipped to be her own decorator than she is to be her own lawyer, theologian or dentist," Miss Fitzgibbon told a luncheon group.

She criticized people in the home furnishing industry for encouraging the homemakers to buy what they like instead of telling them "what they ought to like."

"Telling the average woman to express her individuality in her home is like a surgeon asking a patient what kind of incision she would like," Miss Fitzgibbon stated.

New nylon chenille scatter rugs take to the washing machine easily. They add a lot of color and because they're nylon, won't hang, soaking wet, on your line for days.

AS WE LIVE

Drunken Spouse Makes Her Life Unbearable

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

No wife is required to put up with a drunken husband indefinitely. When he makes no effort to reform, then her responsibility ends. A woman writes:

(Q)—"I have been married 27 years, have a son 25 who is in the service, and a daughter of 23. I have worked for 22 of the 27 years and have taken nothing but abuse and brutality from my husband, who drinks. Eight years ago the court recommended AA to him. He went to the meetings only when he felt like it. According to him, I am supposed to take it. I would appreciate your advice about what I should do. I earn a good living and could support myself if I left him. My son is continually after me to get a separation."

(A)—Why not follow your son's advice? Be sure that the matter is handled through the courts so your husband will be legally responsible for your support.

He has shown no real desire to reform or to do what a man should do when he is married and has children. Not only is he shirking his economic responsibility by drinking up the money he earns, but he is also shirking his moral responsibility to be a decent husband and a father of whom his family can be proud.

Your son and daughter are old enough to realize what hardships you have had to suffer through the years to keep the home and family together. Now that your children are grown, you are no longer called upon to endure these things.

Furthermore, it is embarrassing to your children, as it is to you, to have people know that such a man belongs to the family. Your children would hesitate to bring their friends home, knowing that their father might make a scene and embarrass them.

You have no responsibility to give your husband another chance. He has had all the chances a man can reasonably expect, and he has not taken advantage of them. Now take action, but, in doing so, see that the court awards you money for support instead of allowing it to go into drinks.

HERE'S ANSWER TO COUGHS OF COLDS PROBLEM!

Here is a new, pleasant cough-medicine—Vicks Medi-Trating Cough Syrup. It's different! A combination of a new penetrating ingredient with a medicating formula. The penetrating ingredient carries the medicine to irritated crevices of the throat, where the medicating ingredient can go right to work.

That's why it's named Vicks Medi-Trating Cough Syrup. It medicates as it penetrates.

Jubilee Studies Need for Bigger Psycho Clinic

Increased demand for ward space for psychiatric cases in Victoria may mean another addition to the almost new psychiatric clinic at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Jubilee administrator George Masters said today there has been a high occupancy and some consideration will be given by the hospital board to increasing the size of the clinic.

Built in 1948, it became necessary to add eight more beds a year ago. At the same time kitchen and lounge facilities were increased to a size suitable to accommodate another eight.

No need to fret that the scooped-necked sweater will suddenly pop off the shoulders. Now there's elastic knitted right into it so you can go all evening with that smooth uncovered line and no worries.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The holidays are over . . . and, by the look of the copy coming in to my desk, every club and society in Victoria is starting new season activities. Meetings are already scheduled and executive members are working hard to arrange programs that will interest members and, at the same time, add revenue to club coffers for various projects already assumed or about to be attempted.

Bessie

It seems the proper moment then to remind club presidents that a new service to clubs has been arranged by the Local Council of Women. A service that will eliminate a lot of headaches IF IT IS PROPERLY USED.

It is an information bureau to act as a "clearing house" for events planned by clubs and societies in Victoria.

Idea behind this bureau is to avoid overlapping of dates for special events, which has proven in the past to be a hindrance to the success of many affairs. On a Wednesday early last December there were 15 bazaars. On another day the same month there were nine bazaars and teas!

It does not mean that a club or society must keep away from a date already chosen by some other group for a special event. It does mean, however, that members of said club or society go into the thing with their eyes open.

They will know right from the beginning how much competition they are going to have . . . whether it be one, two or 15 other events. And they can govern their own project accordingly. If they think the competition is going to be too stiff, they will be able to change their date . . . right away.

The whole thing should be easily managed and run . . . IF ALL CLUBS AND SOCIETIES CO-OPERATE. This means not only women's groups . . . but men's groups, too.

How is the bureau to be managed? How is it to be run?

First, it is being sponsored by the Local Council of Women, a group that represents 37 affiliated women's clubs and societies in Victoria.

Second, it is to be run by Mrs. C. H. Cathro, of the doctors' directory, who has offered to organize the bureau as a public service.

All the secretary of a club or society need do is telephone Mrs. Cathro at the doctors' directory as soon as a date for a special project or event is decided . . . and she will list it.

Sounds simple, doesn't it. Then, let's get on the bandwagon and assist the Local Council of Women . . . and Mrs. Cathro . . . to make the information bureau a real success. Start NOW . . . not next summer. List your special events and projects. Give others the chance to know what's going on. Every one will benefit by it and every project will have a better chance of success.

Union Non-Communist Oath Not Yet Law With Locals

A resolution requiring United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America members to swear they are not Communists was passed at the union's general convention in November, but has not yet become law with local unions, an officer said today.

An earlier story in another newspaper said local unions, including Victoria and the rest of B.C., had approved the new measure.

Provincial council of carpenters secretary, E. T. Staley, said this morning the oath cannot become part of the international constitution until passed by a referendum among all North American members, and as yet the referendum has not been distributed.

EXPECTED SOON

Local union officers have not been notified that such a movement is afoot, although it is expected that implementation will come.

If it becomes effective, the new oath may be requested by a local union if it clearly suspects a member of Communist leanings through something he may have said or done.

It would be given to both current and applying members, the resolution said.

Carpenters' union has long had safeguards against Communist members, and questions on papers for application to enter include: "Are you a Communist?" and "Do you agree with the Communist philosophy?"

Mr. Staley said if an affirmative reply were given by an applicant, it is unlikely that the carpenter would be admitted to the union.

The union's executive board first took steps to prevent Communist infiltration in 1926.

Roberts New Chairman Of Harbors Board

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of B. J. Roberts as chairman of the National Harbors Board has been announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The 62-year-old native of Newfoundland, a member of the board since its formation in 1936, succeeds R. K. Smith, who retired recently.

Dr. Sam's Mother Kills Self

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Mrs. Richard A. Sheppard, Sr., the mother of convicted wife-slayer, Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, was found dead today in the home of another son.

Police said she committed suicide by shooting herself. They said she left a suicide note. The contents of the note were not disclosed.

She was found at the home of Dr. Stephen A. Sheppard, Dr. Sam's brother.

Mrs. Sheppard's death was reported as the defense in her son's murder case withdrew its application for a new trial for the 31-year-old osteopath and concentrated efforts on appealing his second degree murder conviction to a higher court.

Attorneys for Sheppard had planned to ask for a new trial on the basis of "newly-discovered evidence," but withdrew the motion before it was heard in Common Pleas Court.

The action canceled a hearing scheduled for tomorrow morning before common pleas Judge Edward Blythin, and paved the way for Dr. Sheppard to be sent to Ohio penitentiary to start serving a life sentence.

Race Track Set To Go; Saanich Control 'Must'

A threat to take out an in-made today by Reeve Joseph junction against backers of a proposed Beaver-Elk Lake race track unless Saanich council approval is first obtained, was said today work will start within a month on a $350,000 lay-out. Plans call for a 5,000 person covered grandstand, stables for 300 horses, plus parking and other facilities, he said.

Reeve Casey reported no official approach has been made to the Saanich council, and as far as I am concerned the whole matter is still in the air. I think they are working on the assumption they don't have to apply to us at all, and likely think they can do anything they want under the Elk Lake Water Act.

The act, dated 1881, gives the city control of the watershed area.

However Saanich Council already has before it a by-law prohibiting anyone from holding race meets or starting track construction without council approval.

LEGAL SEE-SAW
The see-saw between the city and Saanich over which of the two holds jurisdiction of the track site would be a matter for legal opinion, the reeve said.

To date, a petition containing 250 signatures opposing track construction is in Saanich council hands "including 100 per cent of the people in the immediate track area, the reeve said. "On the basis of the petition, a public hearing could be held from which a referendum on the track issue could result.

But with announced plans to start construction next month, there is no time for this, said the reeve. That is why he is considering an injunction if operation get under way without the entire situation being clarified.

SEPTEMBER START
Plans of the racing interests are to hold the first race meet in September on a five-eighths mile track with a six furlong chute, the same size as Hastings Park track.

Parking facilities are planned for approximately 3,000 cars. Centre of the track will be used as a sports arena.

Mr. Hoskin said it is the intention to co-operate in every way with the municipality.

CHIEF BACKERS
Mr. Hoskin also named G. Max Bell, Calgary, prominent western Canadian newspaper publisher and oil magnate, and Ralph Farris, head of a Vancouver investment house and son of Senator J. W. de B. Farris, as principal investors in the racing project.

THRONE SPEECH FORECAST

Ottawa Plans Works Boost to Aid Jobless

B.C. Studies New Power Control

Lands Minister R. E. Sommers said today the B.C. government intends going ahead with present plans for the Kaiser dam despite blocking legislation announced in this morning's Throne Speech in the House of Commons.

"We can only be guided by existing legislation," said Mr. Sommers. "There has been no change in the facts."

The Throne Speech said the federal government will propose to "assume tighter control over the export of power. There will be amendments to the Electricity and Fluids Export Act, and a bill to control works which affect the normal flow of rivers crossing the international boundary into the U.S."

"This bill," the speech said, "will be for the purpose of ensuring that natural resources are developed in the best interests of the Canadian public."

Ottawa reports said the bill is aimed partly at blocking the B.C. government's deal with Kaiser Aluminum interests for construction of a $25-$30,000,000 water storage dam at Castlegar Narrows on Arrow Lakes. The federal government feels the deal is unsatisfactory.

Mr. Sommers said he had not heard of the Throne Speech announcement, and could not say whether Social Credit MP's would be asked to fight the blocking legislation.

MAIN POINTS

OTTAWA (BUP)—Here are the main points of the government's legislative program as outlined in the Throne Speech read by Governor-General Vincent Massey at the Opening of Parliament today:

1. Substantial increases in public construction projects to help meet regional and seasonal unemployment crises.

2. Increases in the size and length of winter supplementary benefits paid under the Unemployment Insurance Act, and general amendments to increase the effectiveness of the act.

3. Increases in the basic rates of War Veterans' Allowances and a higher ceiling on permissible outside income.

4. Removal of Ripple Rock, a hazard to navigation in the mouth of Vancouver Harbor.

5. Changes in the Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act, aimed at blocking a proposal by British Columbia to dam the Arrow Lakes section of the Columbia River to provide power for an aluminum plant in the United States.

6. Federal aid to hurricane victims in Ontario and Nova Scotia.

7. Approval of the NATO protocol admitting West Germany to the Defensive Alliance as a full member.

8. Loan facilities for fishermen similar to those granted farmers under the Farm Improvements Loan Act.

9. Lowered age eligibility regulations for blind persons receiving pensions and higher ceilings on allowable outside income.

10. Changes in the Railway Act to speed the elimination of level crossings.

11. Consolidation of the Canadian National Railways Act.

12. Joint committee study of the present Municipal Grants Act.

13. Stronger meat and canned food inspection measures.

14. Homeowners will be able to obtain bank loans for home improvements under the National Housing Act after Feb. 1.

Insurance Benefit Hike, Bigger Vet Allowances To Get Early Action

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation for a "substantial increase" in public works aimed at combating unemployment will be introduced into Parliament immediately, it was announced in the Speech From the Throne read at today's sessional opening.

Works already approved were being stepped up.

The speech, read by Governor-General Massey, also said Parliament will be asked to increase the amount and duration of supplementary winter unemployment insurance benefits.

Although the national economy is in a generally healthy condition, the throne speech said, "the relatively poor wheat crop is being reflected by a small decline in the total national income. Some unemployment of a regional and seasonal nature is being experienced."

Opening the second session of the 22nd Parliament, Governor-General Massey delivered the throne speech before a joint assembly of senators and Commons members in the red-carpeted Senate chamber, with the glare of television lights beating on the ceremony for the first time.

The governor-general drove from his Rideau Hall residence through biting cold in an open landau, escorted by a mounted 24-man guard of RCMP carrying the Mounties' guidon.

Amendments to the Railway Act dealing with the elimination of level crossings will be proposed. A major feature, it was understood, will be an increase to $5,000,000 from $1,000,000 in the federal government's annual contribution towards removal of crossing hazards, in line with a 1954 recommendation of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Another transport measure will be aimed at consolidating legislation affecting the publicly-owned Canadian National Railways.

Bank Loans for Home Improvements

In outlining proposed government action, the throne speech said the government proposes to bring into general operation Feb. 1 a section of the National Housing Act providing loans for home improvements.

The owner of a one-family unit would be able to obtain a bank loan for home improvement to a maximum of $2,500. This provision was brought into force Jan. 1 for small holders under the Veterans' Land Act. It has also been brought into force in a few limited areas where, for instance, storm damage had been severe.

Increases in the basic rates of allowances to needy war veterans will be proposed, along with raising the ceiling of permissible incomes for these recipients. As is customary in the throne speech's skeleton outline of legislation, no details were given.

About 42,000 persons now receive allowances. A spokesman said the increases would be "generous" but would not be up to the scale sought by the Canadian Legion—to $60 from $50 a month for single recipients and to $120 from $90 a month for married ones.

Legislation will be introduced, the speech announced, to provide facilities for loans to fishermen for improving vessels and equipment. They will be similar to those extended under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, whereby farmers get government-backed loans from banks.

Amendments to the Blind Persons Act, to lower the age of eligibility and to which amendments will be proposed, including the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act and the Municipal Grants Act.

Gold mining aid, it has been reported, will consist of a renewal for 1955 of the subsidy for marginal mines that expired at the end of 1954, with perhaps change in formula reducing the overall cost of about $16,000,000 a year.

Improved Deal for Municipalities

Free nations must maintain efforts to build their forces. While no details of the unemployment insurance proposals were given in the speech, it was learned earlier that the major provision will be to make the supplementary benefits equal to normal benefits.

At present, those qualifying for supplementary benefits get 80 per cent of normal benefits. The supplementary are paid during the first three months of the year, mainly to those qualified for regular benefits whose benefit period has run out. The change is expected to cost about $6,000,000 a year.

Earlier forecasts of a general streamlining of the Unemployment Insurance Act were confirmed in the Throne speech. This will be done in a bill to be introduced after passage of the high-priority supplementary insurance measure. The changes, it was understood, will include elimination of the present stamp-book system and its replacement by a simplified method.

Dealing with external affairs, the speech said parliament will be asked to approve the Paris agreements for the rearmament of West Germany and her admission into NATO.

While there was hopeful evidence that the strength of the free world had lessened the likelihood of aggression, the

GIRL ALIVE AT 10 P.M. WITNESS TESTIFIES

NEW WESTMINSTER (BUP)—Defense counsel for accused murderer Lawrence Vincent continued to hammer at prosecution charges today that 12-year-old Donna Lee Corbett was murdered during the afternoon of Sept. 12, 1953, by producing testimony that the girl was seen alive on the evening of that day.

Major witness today was Donna Jean Eccles, 18, a nurse's aid at the Quessell General Hospital, who testified she saw the victim at the circus between 10:15 and 10:30 p.m. on the day in question.

At Thursday's hearing, Loretta Luft, 16, claimed she saw Miss Corbett two hours after the Crown-alleged she had been slain.

FEAR CAN BE CONQUERED

Chapter 4

No man can travel far along the road to success without courage.

I do not refer to the physical courage which sustains men on the battlefield, but to that rarer quality—moral courage.

This quality has nothing to do with mere stubbornness, which is sometimes a kind of cowardice. Many weaknesses derive from stubbornness.

Men clinging to a business indefinitely in the fond wish that a loss may yet be turned into a profit. They hope for a better day, which their intelligence tells them will never dawn.

For this attitude of mind stupidity is a better word than stubbornness, and a far better word than courage. When reason and judgment bid us give up the immediate battle and start afresh on some new line, it is intellectual cowardice, not moral courage, which bids us persevere.

Courage cannot be divorced from judgment.

On the other hand, cowardice can also consist in too great a readiness for compromise. To the compromising mind the certainty of half a loaf is always better than the probability of a whole one.

RCAF Plane, TCA Airliner Said In Near Collision Over Moose Jaw

OTTAWA (CP)—Transportation department officials are inquiring into reports of a near-collision of two planes near Moose Jaw Thursday night and will decide later whether to hold a formal investigation, a spokesman said today.

The department will collect whatever information is available on the incident involving a TCA airliner and an RCAF training plane. It is possible it will recommend a formal enquiry by the RCAF.

Meanwhile, an RCAF spokesman said it is following a similar course of gathering information and has not yet decided whether to open a formal investigation.

The transport official said this is the normal procedure in such cases.

On arrival at Vancouver early today, Capt. Joseph Crispin of the TCA North Star said he had taken emergency action to avoid a possible mid-air collision just west of Moose Jaw with a plane he identified as an RCAF Harvard. Crispin said he was flying at 6,000 feet.

The transport department spokesman indicated the air force likely would make an investigation, if there is to be one, "because the altitude at which the North Star was flying is a commercial level and an air force plane should not have been on it."

Last April 8 an RCAF Harvard trainer based at Moose Jaw collided with a TCA North Star. All 85 persons aboard the airliner and the Harvard pilot were killed, along with one woman on the ground after wreckage fell onto a Moose Jaw house.

$200 TOTAL PRIZE FOR CROSSWORD 94

The fact that there are lots of "misters" in the world but not so many "masters" spoiled the entries of nearly 75 per cent of contestants in the Times' Crossword Puzzle No. 94.

"It's not every man you would call this of course" was the clue, which implied most but not all men. This favors the answer "mister" which can apply to all but the small minority of men bearing ranks and titles. There are relatively few men who would be called "masters."

"Vow" instead of "Bow" and "Hear" instead of "Head" were other words that disqualified hundreds of other entries.

So the total prize for Crossword No. 94, which appears today on Page 19, together with complete answer for No. 93, jumps to $200.
